Bipartisan Task Force on
Non-Proliferation Panel Discussion

Spotlight on N. Korea:
IS U.S. POLICY WORKING?

January 21, 2003

Dear Colleague:

The government of North Korea has admitted to having a uranium enrichment program, withdrawn from the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty, expelled inspectors from the International Atomic Energy Agency and threatened to resume long-range ballistic missiles tests. How do these events affect international and regional security and stability? What impact will they have on international non-proliferation efforts? How do they affect plans to transfer two nuclear reactors to North Korea? What options face U.S. policy makers in responding to North Korea's actions?

We invite you and your staff to attend a Bipartisan Task Force on Non-Proliferation panel discussion on these and related issues. The panelists will include:

Robert Gallucci, Dean of the Edmund A. Walsh School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University, has worked in non-proliferation for nearly 30 years and was one of the architects of the 1994 Agreed Framework with North Korea; and James Lilley, Senior Fellow at the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, was Ambassador to the Republic of Korea and the Peoples' Republic of China under the Reagan and George H.W. Bush Administrations, respectively.

The Task Force panel discussion is scheduled for:

Monday, January 27 at 10:00 am
1334 Longworth Building

If you have further questions about the event or wish to join the Non-Proliferation Task Force, please have your staff contact Benn Tannenbaum (Rep. Markey) at 225-2836 or Len Wolfson (Rep. Shays) at 225-5541.

Sincerely,

Edward J. Markey
